"THE TIMES" LEADING ARTICLE. - Extract from the London Times :- Passing by a crowd of minor notions, we come upon the exhibit of the Waltham Watch Company, which, in economical importance, is perhaps superior to anything else shown. The rivalry of the watches of this Company has already been felt by our own makers, and a hesitating attempt was made last session, in the interest of the Coventry manufacturers, to prevent the watch cases of the Company receiving the English stamp, which certifies that they are made of gold. It would seem that the Waltham Watches may defy all attempts to exclude them in this indirect way. Their first claim to public approval was derived from the extraordinary nicety of their construction. They were made with such perfect exactitude that the parts of all watches of the same class could be nterchanged, and, production being thus made possible on a large scale, cheapness as well as excellence was secured. But the Company have gone on introducing improvements in their art, and the compensation balance they have devised seems to have overcome the standing difficulty of the varying expansibility of the spring and the wheel. It is said that the delicacy of construction of the me-chanism invented by the Company is such that a micrometer they exhibit at Paris measures the twenty-five-thousandth part of an inch, and might readily be divided under a lens into one-hundredthousandth parts. Gibson, His Hawaiian Majesty's Minister of Foreign Affairs: SIR.—The undersigned beg leave to refer your Excellency to the conversation which we had with you concerning a newspaper article which appeared in the Daily Review, No. 203, of August 31, 1882. headed "Modern Slavery," in consequence of which the German residents in these Islands have signed a declaration refuting the misrepresenta tions contained in the article above alluded to. We now have the honor to submit to your Excellency a copy of the original declaration in German, a translation of which into English, together with a list of subscribers, has already been handed in, and most respectfully beg to request that your Excellency will cause the same to be printed, with such comments as His Majesty's Government may see fit and useful, and to distribute the same to the Hawaiian Consuls abroad for further publication

We have the honor to remain Your Excellency's most ob't servants, H. A. WIDEMANN, HEINR F. GLADE, H. RIEMENSCHNEIDER. [Translation.]

DECLARATION. In several German and Austrian newspapers which have come to hand by late mails, we find de scriptions of affairs here, which, if true, would fill with shame and dismay every just and honest man, and especially us who live in this country. Among others the Daily Review in its No. 203, of August 31, 1882, produces an article headed "Modern Slavery," from which we quote: "That he trade in human flesh on the Sandwich Islands has latterly become quite common, and that it oc-eurs daily that laborers change their owners; that the value of a good strong man was considered to be $200, and that of a smart pretty girl $300, and that sales were made at such rates." At the close of this article our countryman, Mr. J. C. Glade, the Swedish-Norwegian Consul, who is at the same time Imperial German Consul, is accused that in his former qualification he had placed under arrest and fasting Norwegians working on the Island plan tations who had asked his advice and assistance.

The Daily Review bases the above article on the statements of two Norwegians, who in company Kiehl, R. Richardson, and WilliamBrown, were with about four hundred of their countrymen, had charged with gambling on Thursday, on the left Norway in December, 1880, and bound themturned King's evidence, and were not prose- plantations here, against free passage to the Sandcuted. His Honor explained to the prisoners | wich Islands and a monthly pay of $9.00 (about 38 lost and won, was sufficient to bring them in | selves and their families. It is understood that only the men are bound to work; the women and children, however, may demand work and receive for such remunerative pay. The above two Norwegians, named Ratzhorn and Anderson, soon after their arrival, broke their obligations by desertion, absconded to San Francisco, and have found there a willing ear with the San Francisco Chronicle, a newspaper entertaining ill-feeling towards the Islands. Their malicious an impure one, are derived the reports concerning the disgraceful state of affairs on the Hawaiian Islands which have lately been copied by many European newspapers. We, the undersigned Germans, after having been obliged to make the disagreeable experience that even respectable newspapers do not hold it inconsistent with their dignity to represent to their readers the malicious inventions of run-away adventurers as facts, and to bring before the public culated to harm their honor, declare hereby, that a state of affairs as described in the Daily Review is Kekula, reported to be an old offender, was during the past twenty-five or thirty years. fined $50 and sentenced to three months im-Personal freedom is, thanks to a well-regulated legislation, as secure here as in those countries which claim the highest civilization, and the legal and workingman are entirely just and founded on those now in existence in the United States of America. There occur here, as well as everywhere in the world, disagreements between employer and workingmen, which needs hardly to be mentioned and much less to be enlarged upon. But such disagree-ments are carefully inquired into by our Courts and decisions given in a like manner. Not only is every facility granted to the workingman to ob tain justice, but the Government has also taken an initiatory step by creating an office with the duty to protect the interests of the immigrated working men. This office (the Board of Immigration) with the Minister of Interior as President, takes care that the immigrants who arrive here are distributed among the plantations with a view to their family relationships. A high salaried official of the Board of Immigration visits, several times during the year, the entire number of plantations, in order to convince himself that the workingmen are provided with good and ample lodgings, good food, and with everything else which they are entitled to. The article in the Daily Review, referred to above, contains the following passage: "It occurs daily that workingmen change their owners.' There can be no dispute about such change of employers, because the law provides especially that under no circumstances can a labor contract be transferred by the employer alone. Even the agreement of the workingman is not yet sufficient, be cause the law requires that in order to validate such transfer of contracts, there is not only neces sary the agreement between employer and workingmen, but also the sanction of the Board of Immigration, who in the time of the first engagement has acted as protector of the laborer, who was then

It would require too much space to consider every point of the libel, but we wish once more to emphasize that the description of affairs as spoken of by the Daily Review is untrue. We require in no way the assistance of newspapers at home, but we demand that they will be truthful and conscientious when speaking about us, and that they will not in a frivolous manner

Civil Summary Court.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 13th. J. E. Wiseman vs J. H. Lynch. Action of assumpsit for $40. Plaintiff, a real estate agent, rented rooms belonging to defendant; he had also acted as broker in the sale of furniture to the amount of $250. Mr. Wale, the tenant of the rooms and the purchaser of the furniture gave corroborative evidence, and also stated that he was told by defendant not to inform Mr Wiseman of the purchase of the furniture, as it would save him (defendant) $25. Defendant denied having engaged the services of the plaintiff, Judgment for plaintiff for $22 50, costs $3 80.

How Russian Girls Are Courted

Love is the same the world over, but courting' is managed very differently in different countries. Russian courting, among the middle classes, is peculiar. The first Whit-Sunday after the young girl is acknowledged by her mother to be of marriageable years she is taken to the Petersburgh summer-garden, to join the 'bridal promenade.' This consists of the daughters of the Russian tradesmen walking in procession, followed by their parents. Up and down they go, pretending to chat with each other and pretending to take notice of the young men-the tradesmen's sons, dressed in their best clothes-who walk in another procession on the other side. However, every now and then, some young fellow slips out of his proper rank and adds himself to the line of girls on the other side, speaking to join in the conversation in a few moments and soon they leave the promenade and are joined by the parents of the young man. Generally, the old folks have talked it well over before, but on this occasion everyone pretends to be surprised. On the next day the names of well-reputed persons in a manner cal- a female confidente calls on the girl's parents and request her hand. This granted neither possible at present nor has it ever existed all the relations on both sides meet and argue about the portion to be given with the girl. If not satisfactory, all is at an end if it is what is expected, the betrothal takes

The bride and bridegroom kneel down upon a great fur mat, and the bride takes a ring from her finger and gives it to the bridegroom, who returns the gift by another. The bride's mother meanwhile crumbles a piece of bread over her daughter's head, and her father holds the image of his daughter's patron saint over his future sonin-law's well-brushed locks. As they rise the bridesmaids sing a wedding song. The guests each bring forward a present of some sort, Wine is handed about, and some one says it is bitter and needs sweetening. Upon this the bridegroom kisses the bride---the sweetness being supposed to be provided by this kiss---salutes the company and takes his leave, on which the bridesmaids sing a song with a chorus something like this:---"Farewell happy bridegroom, But return to be still more happy." Courting time has now begun, Every evening the lover comes to his lady's home with a present which is always something good to eat-generally cakes or sugarplums. He makes love under rather awkward circumstantes, for the bridesmaids sit about the betrothed pair in a circle, singing

The last evening of the courtship is enlivened by the presentation of the gifts of the bridegroom, which must include brushes, combs, so p, and perfumery. On receiving these the bridesmaids instantly carry the bride away, and wash her, dress her hair, and perfume her pocket-handkerchief. Thus touched up, she returns to the com-

son-in-law the marriage portion, which he takes home with him in a neat bag. The next morning he returns for the lady herself. She receives him with her hair unbraided and flowing down her back. They aremarried by the ceremonies of the Greek Church, and the old folks never go to the wedding dinner.

Those eternal bridesmaids, whom they must hate by this time, are there, however, still on duty, and the evening closes by the pany, and the bride's father gives his future bride kneeling down and pulling off her husband's boots to prove her intention to be an obedient and submissive wife. Good-natured bridegrooms generally hide jewellery or money in their boots, which the bride may take possession of as balm for her pride. After the wedding day the parents begin to give feasts, and keep it up a week, and it is not until all this is over that the "young couple" see those blessed bridesmaids take their departure. They are then compelled to kiss them, thank them, and give them each a present.

THE GLOBULAR FORM OF THE BARTH .---A new proof of the globular form of the earth has been produced by two scientists in Geneva, MM. Dufour and Farrel. They have called attention to the fact that the images of steamers and the surrounding mountains, when reflected upon the surface of the immense lake, invariably appeared in a diminished size. Hence they conclude that the surface of the immense lake must be bent in a convex shape, otherwise it could not produce the same results as a Japanese diminishing mirror, or a convex lens. Of course, this observation is not confined to the Lake of Geneva, but must
